Residents of Hunterdon Join In U.S. Policy Protests in N.J.

By KEN MOORE

One in a series of anti-American policy demonstrations planned nation-wide for this weekend will be held tomorrow in Trenton, with several Central New Jersey residents expected to participate.

The Trenton demonstration—which includes 11 workshops and an 18 mile march on Fort Dix—will be a protest to American intervention in Vietnam.

Circulars have been mailed throughout the state.

A similar series of national protests was held last August, when young men in New York destroyed their draft cards in a bon-fire, students in California halted a train by picketing, and a march on Washington, D.C., resulted in leaders being smeared with red paint by people they claimed were members of the American Nazi party.

One of those covered with the red paint then is also sponsor in the Trenton protest. He is David Dellinger of Hunterdon County's Glen Gardner, a nationally known pacifist and editor of a magazine, "The Libertarian." Dellinger's print shop in Glen Gardner was damaged last week by vandals who, he claimed, were also members of the Nazi party.

Workshops are listed on such topics as:

The draft, history of the war, techniques of protest, how to work for peace on your job, civil rights, peace and the university, the war and the ghetto, organizing the campus, organizing the community, N.J. economic interests in the war, political action and moral aspects of the war.

The workshops and demonstrations are being organized by a group identified as "The New Jersey Committee to End the War in Vietnam."

The executive committee of the N.J. American Legion earlier this month cited the upcoming weekend demonstrations and urged that they, along with last night's teaching at Rutgers University, be put to a halt as un-American activities.

2 Training Centers

U.S. Jaycee President James A. Skidmore Jr. of Bellville, N.J. last week claimed that leftist students have been put through two training centers and sent to 11 cities in the United States to organize such protests.

Pickets tomorrow are scheduled to form at 11 a.m. at the Trenton post office, where several federal offices are housed.

A march through Trenton is set for noon, with workshops to be held from 1 to 4 p.m. followed by a rally and speakers.

An 18-mile march on Fort Dix is scheduled for 5 p.m.

A circular in Hunterdon this week was sent by William Lovette, chairman of the Peace and Social Order Committee of the Quakertown Friends Meeting of Hunterdon County.

Lovette is also chairman of the Hunterdon County Human Rights Association, a civil rights group which this summer operated a Headstart program with $8,830 in federal anti-poverty funds, drawing 50 pre-school youngsters to the six-week course.

In an accompanying letter with the circular, Lovette stated:

"The war in Vietnam continues its tragic and destructive course. As usual, the 'experts' are predicting that 'this' will be the time when the tide will turn in favor of our side. As usual, these 'experts' say that aybaitment of the bombings and troop buildup would be considered a sigh of weakness.

"How much longer can we sit back and, by our quietness, give Congress and President Johnson the impression that they have our support in this ill-fated venture in slaughter? Do we not, both morally and as concerned citizens, have a responsibility to speak out on behalf of democracy and reason and against sheer crushing military might and CIA (U.S. Central Intelligence Agency) intrigue? . . . should we not reexamine our impact on these underdeveloped nations, which for many years now has been 95 per cent military and only 5 per cent constructive, in terms of their social and economic problems.

Can You Testify?

"Can you come and stand with us in front of the U.S. post office (the federal 'presence'—in Trenton at 11 a.m. on Oct. 16th to testify with your body for a change in our government policy? A change away from the bankruptcy of military solutions, and toward the reconvening of the Geneva Conference of 1954, and all other democratic and economic solutions to win the support of all the Vietnamese people."

The circular, which, says the protest is coordinated with the international days of protest, today and tomorrow, lists sponsors throughout the state including Dellinger and Lovette.

Persons from seven New Jersey colleges are listed among the sponsors.

They include people from Rutgers and Drew Universities where two professors have become embroiled in controversy since proclaiming themselves believers in Marxism.

Morris County sponsors include Chaplain James Sessions, Dr. William A. Johnson and Richard Schell, all of Drew University, and Carol Ann Jones of Morris town.

Middlesex County sponsors are Gerald Bertin of Rutgers University and Betty Butler of New Brunswick.

Identified in the circular by colleges are Robert Browne of Fairleigh Dickinson University; Michael Walser of Princeton University; Gerald Derman of Jersey City State College; Thomas Haessler of St. Peters College, and Dr. John Runder of Paterson State College.

The list of 34 sponsors also includes a physician and three ministers.
